

The first week of class consisted of discussing plans for groupings and initial templates for our products. I was placed in the group responsible for grinding a secondary mirror and creating a turntable to cast a primary mirror. We shortly discussed design choices for the turntable, but didn't decide on anything in particular.